EXPLORE MCCARTHY ALASKA

ALASKA ADVENTURE, YOUR WAY.

Maybe Alaska is a once-in-a-lifetime bucket list trip for you, or maybe you've been here before but you're looking for something unique and off the beaten path.

No matter your reasons, if you're drawn to the untouched wilderness where you can hear the sounds a glacier makes with your hand pressed against the ice, or see a bear lumber across the horizon from the safety of your raft, and experience small Alaskan town living...you're in the right place!

We understand that the most inspiring and memorable trips are the ones where you can let go and have fun with complete confidence that you're in expert hands. This is why we're here to help you plan your itinerary—from your travel and accommodations to day trips, food, and more!

WELCOME TO THE LAST FRONTIER

MCCARTHY, ALASKA—LOCATED IN WRANGELL-ST. ELIAS NATIONAL PARK & PRESERVE

Rugged mountains, hanging glaciers, and abundant wildlife are all on display in what is the largest national park (and possibly the best-kept secret!) in the United States: Wrangell-St. Elias National Park & Preserve.

At 13.2 million acres, this national park is the same size as Yellowstone National Park, Yosemite National Park, and Switzerland combined. It is home to Mt. St. Elias, the second-highest peak in the United States at 18,008 feet, and boasts a rich and diverse wilderness.

And the best part? It's a short 7-8 hour drive from Anchorage, and that makes immersing yourself in this wild, untouched land easier than ever.

QUICK FACTS

- * Wrangell-St. Elias National Park & Preserve is a designated World Heritage Site with Glacier Bay National Park & Preserve, Kluane National Park Reserve, and Tatshenshini-Alsek National Park. Together, they make this the world's largest international protected wilderness.
- * Mt. St. Elias, at 18,008 feet, is the second-highest peak in the United States.
- * Mt. Wrangell, at 14,163 feet, is one of the largest active volcanoes in North America.
- * The Nabesna Glacier, at approximately 80 miles, is the longest non-polar valley glacier.
- * The Hubbard Glacier is one of the largest and most active tidewater glaciers in North America.
- * The spectacularly scenic, 6- to 8-hour drive from Anchorage rivals the best drives in the world. Immersing yourself in this wild, untouched land is both the journey and the destination!
- * Childs Glacier calving into the Copper River, which can be viewed on our Copper River expedition, is one of the best scenic river trips in the world!

FAQ

QUESTIONS ABOUT GETTING HERE

What are the McCarthy Road and the Nubesna Road like?

The Nubesna Road is roughly a 50-mile stretch of dirt road with multiple creek crossings and a very quiet end-of-road. Meanwhile, the McCarthy Road has been vastly improved since 2006, with many of its stretches now straightened and widened, and creek crossings have been routed into culverts. That being said, it is still a 60-mile dirt road and you should expect to travel between 25 and 30 miles an hour with some occasional rough stretches.

Can I drive my rental car on the McCarthy and Nubesna park roads?

The McCarthy and Nubesna Roads are maintained by the State of Alaska as state right-of-ways. However, since they are dirt roads, many rental companies restrict travel on them; you will also encounter this if you attempt to drive the Dalton or Denali highways, as these are dirt roads too. It is worth checking with local car rental companies like Midnight Sun Car Rental in Anchorage about options for driving on dirt roads in Alaska.

ADVENTURES

LET'S MAKE A DAY OF IT!

DAY TRIPS

Paddle around icebergs, explore hidden ice amphitheaters, hike on Root Glacier, and watch for Alaska wildlife roaming the open meadows of the banks.

Our day trips are private, which gives you a unique and authentic experience that aligns with your interest, comfort level, and pace.

KENNICOTT GLACIER LAKE & RIVER RAFTING

Explore a glacial lake that formed in the last 25 years, float next to a 25-mile long glacier, jump from an iceberg into glacial waters (protected by a drysuit!), learn about the natural and human history of the Kennicott Valley, and—of course—raft class III whitewater!

GLACIER HIKES

Explore the blue pools, moulin, crevasses, and rolling ice of the Root Glacier accompanied by one of our local guides. Hikes include a walking tour through historic Kennicott, expert glacier crampon instruction, exploring the glacier, and more.

KENNICOTT GLACIER LAKE KAYAK TOUR

Take an exciting 4-hour Alaska glacial kayak tour on the Kennicott Glacier Lake paddle among icebergs, hike on the rocky surface of the ancient ice and watch as geology happens before your eyes.

REGENERATIVE TOURISM

McCarthy River Tours was founded in 2010 in the spirit of exploring the great rivers of Wrangell-St. Elias National Park. At the heart of our mission to provide you with an unforgettable Alaskan experience is the commitment to not only protect the wilderness we enjoy with you—but to actively participate in regenerative tourism as well.

Wrangell-St. Elias, the largest national park in the country, is committed to the four pillars of sustainable tourism: effective management, social and economic development, cultural protection, and environmental efforts. McCarthy River Tours is also committed to supporting the stewardship of our region's environment, communities, and economies. We recognize that healthy, intact ecosystems are vital to sustaining the local Alaska Native and rural cultures.

McCarthy River Tours is a 1% for the Planet Member and is certified in and adheres to Leave No Trace ethics to ensure that we limit our impact on the wilderness and leave it better than we found it. We are also River Ambassadors with American Rivers. Educating our visitors in sustainable and regenerative practices is a critical aspect of our work. We've invested in solar energy for our grounds and operation, and we buy/source locally. We regularly volunteer for community initiatives, too.

We believe the experience you'll have with us will transform and renew your commitment to making a difference for people, place, and planet.

The sky above is a clear blue with some wispy white clouds. In the foreground, several hikers are walking away from the camera, their figures silhouetted against the bright ice. They are wearing backpacks and outdoor gear. One hiker on the left has a large, colorful backpack. Another hiker further back has a red water bottle attached to their belt. The overall scene is one of a challenging and beautiful outdoor adventure.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

MORE QUESTIONS

What's the weather like?

Alaska weather can be hard to predict, as it can change suddenly and dramatically.

June tends to be the nicest month but also the buggyest. July is warm and very busy, while August tends to be cooler and more likely to see some rain, but the least buggy! During the summer months, the prepared traveler should plan for temperatures ranging from 40°F to 80°F.

When is there a midnight sun?

McCarthy's longest day of the year is the Summer Solstice, sometime between June 20th-22nd. The sun is up from 3 AM until just before midnight, and it does not get dark all night. By August, we start getting dark nights again, and stars begin to come back out. This is when we start seeing the occasional Aurora Borealis!

What is the best time of year to see the Northern Lights?

Although the winter months offer the clearest viewing opportunities thanks to sub-zero temperatures, September and October can be equally good without the frigid cold! You'll enjoy the added bonus of the Alaskan fall foliage and lower rates for transport and accommodation.

Is the park open year-round?

The park is technically open year-round. However, the seasonal window during which people visit is between May 15th and September 15th. Outside of that window, services can be minimal. We offer trips from the last weekend in May until the first weekend in September. If you're interested in days beyond this, contact us! We can create a custom booking and help you with your itinerary to ensure an easy, seamless experience!

Do you include drysuits on your trips?

Yes! We raft and paddle rivers that originate from glaciers: the temperature of the water can hover in the mid-30's. A drysuit is not only a much-needed barrier from the cold water in an emergency situation, but it turns an average day on the river from stressful to fun! You don't have to worry about staying warm and dry if it rains or you get splashed.

I have questions! How can I reach you?

You can call us at 907-302-0688, email us via our contact form, or use our website chat feature. Either way, we're looking forward to helping you plan your visit to McCarthy—and your adventure with us!
